Information Business Systems Manager – Sales, Marketing and Services

Information Business Systems

We are seeking to strengthen our ability to support business processes through efficient use of information business systems. An updated IT Enterprise Architecture is under development, and the larger changes are first and foremost driven by the needs of the sales, marketing and services organization.

The Information System Manager – Sales, Marketing and Services (SMS) will be the architect of the IT business application portfolio needed to support existing and new business processes. This includes, but is not limited to, the CRM platform. This role is the translator of business needs to functional needs. The position is located in Stavanger.

As an Information Business System Manager – SMS you are accountable for:

- Defining the business application architecture needed to support Sales, Marketing and Services (SMS)
- Translation of SMS business and process needs to functional requirements for changes and projects.
- Providing advice and recommendations based on the functional requirements defined.
- Manage prioritization of business systems changes within SMS
- Coordinate end user validation and roll-out of business system changes.

The candidate:

We are searching for a candidate with a Master degree and a minimum 5 years of proven leadership skills. Many years of relevant experiences and other capabilities that can compensate for the lack of a master degree:

- Experience with implementation of Information Business Systems for Sales, Marketing and Services.
- Business process management and change management.
- Ability to successfully operate across all functions and build a network in the organization
- Organized, systematic and fluent in English (oral and written)
